

The Linc;

January 27, 2022

Principal's Message:

It has been a great week at Lincoln. I can't believe it's the end of January and we managed to make it through the month without any snow days! Nevertheless, we have been able to have quality outdoor time with plenty of snow.

The past two weeks we have been taking our NWEA tests in both math and reading. The initial results indicate that our students have made nice progress since the start of the school year. I am thankful for our hardworking staff and parents who have been working as a team to help our students be successful. Grade level teams will be looking over the results and adjusting instruction to better serve their students.

Today, students will be bringing home report cards, please view these reports as a way to talk to your child about areas for improvement academically and emotionally. Parent teacher conferences will take place in March, but parents are encouraged to contact teachers as needed.

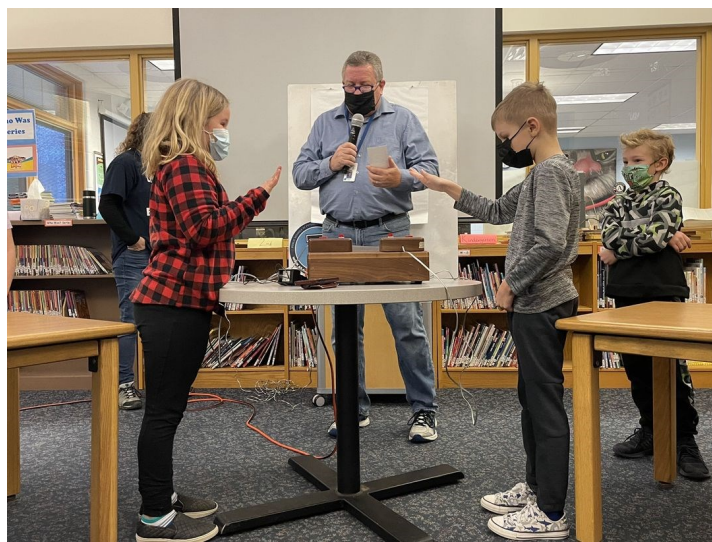

Have a great weekend !
